TALKING POINTS OF THE MONTH

The negative development evident in last month's report has subsided slightly for some of the macroeconomic key figures. Amongst these figures are the confidence indicator for households that increased by 0.9 units and the value of the Swedish Krona which strengthened relative to both the Euro and USD. However, multiple key figures have continued to decline. Firstly, the unemployment rate reached 7.8, percent which is the highest measured level in over one year. Secondly, the expectations expressed by hotel companies regarding demand over the next three months declined. More than half of the surveyed hotels anticipate a decreased demand, reflecting the growing pessimism in line with the sustained market pressures. Thirdly, the CPIF, which had been decreasing over the past 8 months following historically high levels at the end of 2022, reversed its trend by increasing in October.

- The confidence indicator for households increased by 0.7 units in October 2023 – see confidence indicators on page 2.
- The value of the Swedish Krona increased relative to both the Euro and the US Dollar – see exchange rates on page 2.
- The CPIF, having declined since reaching historically high levels at the end of 2022, saw an increase in October – see inflation rates on page 2.
- More than half of the hotels who participated in the economic tendency survey by KI expect decreased demand – see expectations on page 3.

MACRO INDICATORS IN SWEDEN

In October, the confidence indicator continued to decline for businesses, from 86.8 to 85.9 units. However, at the same time, the downward trend for the household indicator subsided slightly from 69.4 to 70.1 units. This marks the first positive development in four months.
